ABOUT THE CLINIC

Karlskrona Hospital is home to Thoraxcentrum, providing highly specialised cardiac and lung surgical care to patients from across Blekinge and beyond. The clinic has around 200 employees working in healthcare, intensive care and X-ray wards as well as in reception and surgical operations.

The clinic has close collaboration between its different operations, short decision-making paths, close contact with clinic management and opportunities to be involved in and influence the development of the operations.

At Thoraxcentrum, thoracic anesthesiologists, thoracic surgeons, cardiologists and thoracic radiologists work in close collaboration with intensive care nurses, nurses and assistant nurses across Thiva (Thoracic Intensive Care Division), Surgery and On-call Surgery. The clinic values a working climate where colleagues help each other and use the skills of the whole team.

As a specialist physician in thoracic anesthesia, you work with advanced care in the areas of invasive electrophysiology, pacemakers, ICD/CRT, invasive cardiology/PCI and TAVI, for patients with a wide range of diagnoses. You monitor and assess the patient's condition and, together with the other professions in the team, are responsible for acting quickly in the event of changes.

The work is varied and requires both independence and close collaboration, spanning both acute and planned activities. At the clinic, staff work closely together across professional and operational boundaries, which gives the opportunity to use a broad range of skills, take responsibility and continuously develop in the professional role.

As a new employee, you receive an individually tailored introduction based on your experience, skills and needs.

KARLSKRONA

The Blekinge region, home to the coastal city of Karlskrona, offers a high quality of life that blends natural beauty with a calm, well-functioning everyday environment. Located in the southeast of Sweden, Blekinge is known for its proximity to both the sea and nature, creating an attractive setting for those who value balance between work, leisure, and family life. Karlskrona, the regional capital, adds a distinctive urban character shaped by history, maritime traditions, and modern services.

Blekinge is often described as Sweden's "garden by the sea," with a landscape defined by forests, open countryside, lakes, and an extensive archipelago. The region provides excellent opportunities for outdoor activities such as hiking, cycling, kayaking, sailing, and swimming. The coastal environment and archipelago are easily accessible, allowing residents to enjoy nature year-round, while small towns and villages contribute to a strong sense of community and tranquility.

Karlskrona offers a compact yet vibrant city experience. As a UNESCO World Heritage Site, the city combines historic architecture with contemporary living. Residents benefit from a range of restaurants, cafés, shops, and cultural venues, as well as events connected to the city's maritime heritage. The city's manageable size makes daily life convenient, with short distances between home, work, schools, and leisure activities.

Blekinge and Karlskrona provide excellent accessibility and infrastructure despite their calm pace of life. Commuting times are short across the entire county, public services are well organized, and healthcare and educational facilities are easily available. This combination of natural surroundings, functional infrastructure, and a relaxed lifestyle makes Blekinge an appealing region for both professionals and families seeking long-term stability and quality of life.
